7 Days—1st Audition

This past October we flew into the Valley to hold auditions for our feature film, 7 Days. People came in from all over the Valley to be seen by the producers. Needless to say, we were able to find some amazing local talent.

We'd like to offer our thanks to the City of San Juan, the EDC, and Pharr-San Juan-Alamo High School for providing an ideal environment to launch our search for the next Mexican/American Idol.

A big shout out goes to Miki McCarthy who helped with the preparation and execution of the casting call. Let's not forget to thank the San Juan Fire Department for their amazing BBQ plates. Valley brisket, you can't beat it.

We would also like to extend our gratitude to all the actors/artists who spent their time and energy to come in and share their talent with us. We were blown away by what we experienced.

Creative Director, Mando Alvarado, preparing for a long day

We are planning another casting call in March 2008, so tell your family, friends and possibly pets. As always, we encourage the community to get involved and be a part of this because without you, this film would not be possible.

Happy Holidays and MERRY CHRISTMAS to all of you from all of us at TGTG FILMS.

-Michael Ray Escamilla, Creative Director

The Upcoming New Year

It's beginning to snow here in NYC. And I bet it's nice and cozy in the Valley.

As the end of the year nears, I can't help but get into a contemplative mood. I'd like to tell you that I am currently sitting in front of the fire, sipping on Cognac, gazing into the flames and pondering the experiences that brought me laughter, joy, pain, distress and headaches over the last year. But I'm not. I'm in front of a computer screen writing this for all of you to read. But, under the incandescent office lights, I ponder. Not of the past, but into the future.

The process has begun. The wheels are in motion and the ride of our small companies' lives is about to take place. We are only FOUR MONTHS away from our target start up date for production. And a wash of excitement and fear has come over me. We stand before a cliff, parachute in hand, and are searching for the courage to jump off. Thank the Lord above, that we have all of you for support. We look out into the bright blue expanse. We take a collective deep breath and we jump off.

Here are things to come in the new year. We are currently in process of solidifying our Producer. We've been meeting with some wonderful, professional candidates and we feel that the individual we bring on board will not only be qualified, but extremely passionate as well. Plus, they must have an undying love for enchiladas!

As Michael explained in this newsletter, we held our first casting session. We look to solidify roles by April. Part of this solidification process will consist of having more open casting sessions, speaking with casting directors, and offering two or three roles to named talent. Michael and I plan to be in the Valley in March to begin the pre-production process. So be prepared for our phone calls. Yes, we will be asking for favors. As my mother says, "You only call when you need something!" Well, at least I call.

It looks to be an exciting and hectic year for our film company. For my self, I am truly thankful that we have this opportunity to create something that is representative of our work. We have a good script, good people involved and a great area to play in.

See you all in the New Year and Happy Holidays!
